

Change Is Inevitable. It Does Not Have To Be Awkward

A Letter From Dr Keiffer and EVND.

To the entire extended EVND family,

You may have received an email with the announcement that I am moving my practice from EVND. I apologize that it came before this letter.

Many of you know I live in Central Phoenix and therefore have done a relatively long commute for well over ten years. Moving my practice was a very difficult personal decision. All of us face these choices in life. My goal is to keep my priorities in order and always act with my family as the highest priority. It is not easy to leave the EVND family. When I say 'family', I mean the staff, Doctors and incredible patients.

Humans in general are uncomfortable with change.

It is often perceived as a bad event.

The reality is that it doesn't have to be.

It can be seen as an opportunity for growth and expansion for everyone involved.

I know that us doctors at EVND intend to always act in a way that serves our patients to the best of our ability. My relocation will inevitably cause inconvenience for some. For any and all disruptions I apologize.

In true naturopathic form and characteristic of EVND Physicians there is only love and support between us. There are no hard feelings and we will continue to be friends, colleagues and essentially family.

I have told those of you who saw me in office before my departure that once you are a patient at EVND you will continue to be part of that office. I encourage you to continue using the services available.

If you would like help transitioning to one of the doctors at EVND for your care I am happy to assist in connecting you with the right one for you.

In a nutshell,

we are all okay with the changes.

Our relationships continue to be only positive and supportive. I just want to communicate that to you, the extended EVND family.

I am extremely grateful for my years at EVND.

I send you all love and wishes of great health.

My deepest gratitude,

Dr. Julie Keiffer, NMD
